First off, let's get one thing straight: TA: Kingdoms isn't just Total Annihilation with swords and sorcery in place of robots and tanks.. With TA, Cavedog took the traditional real-time strategy game by the short and curlies and pulled down very hard.. Westwood may have started the war, but Cavedog won the latest battle, making TA one of the best games of the last two years.

The next stage is imminent, and although Cavedog refuse to be goaded into a war of words, he's willing to talk openly about his own games.. So hard, in fact, that Westwood, creators of Command & Conquer, are still clutching their collective nuts and squealing in the background.. 'They're both different,' says Ron, of Total Annihilation and Kingdoms. If we were to believe Ron Gilbert, head of Cavedog Entertainment, TA: Kingdoms is a whole new game.
